

Lean On Me

If someone happened to show up on your doorstep crying, would you care?

If someone called you and asked you to pick them up because something happened, would you come?

If someone had one day left to live life, would you be part of that last day?

If someone needed a shoulder to cry on, would you give yours?

This is a test to see whom your real friends are or if you are just someone to talk to when they are bored.
